

National Student Employment Association

NSEA Colleagues,

We unite with the communities, professional organizations, colleges and universities across the country in grief at the senseless killings in Georgia that took place on Tuesday afternoon. The xenophobia, discrimination, and increased attacks on the Asian-American community across the country are extremely harmful not only to society at large, but also to the mission of our work within student employment.

The NSEA Board of Directors remain committed to inclusive excellence across the association especially in support of creating a community of belonging in which all NSEA practices, programs, and opportunities exhibit our core values. Through Student Employment we firmly believe we have the ability to create a profound impact on both our colleagues across the NSEA community and students across each of our campuses.

We must stand united to recognize that the continued injustices, which especially impact our colleagues and students of color as well as other marginalized identities, serve as a significant threat to the overall success of our collective work. We offer our support to our colleagues impacted by these heinous acts and strongly encourage student employment be used as a vehicle on each of our campuses to demonstrate acceptance and respect.

Respectfully,

2020 NSEA Board of Directors
